

Draw a Self-Portrait!

Next, draw the nose. On most faces, the nose is about halfway between the eyes and the bottom of the face. Again, each person's face looks different, so be sure to study YOUR face.

Then draw the mouth. The mouth is about halfway between the nose and the bottom of the face.

Add the neck and shoulders. Remember, your neck starts behind your ears. The shoulders are usually about twice as wide as the head.

Draw the hair. Make sure you study your hair so you can see the hair's direction, length, and texture. You can also add details like glasses, clothes, and jewelry
